

Who we are

Healthy Rivers Australia is a not-for-profit organisation, established in 2004, dedicated to improving the health of Australia's river ecosystems. We provide an exciting way to be involved in improving our environment.

Healthy Rivers Australia has established Australia's first environmental Water Bank to provide water for community-based river and wetland restoration projects.

The benefits of becoming involved

A partnership with Healthy Rivers Australia will demonstrate your company's commitment to the environment and help it to achieve its Corporate Social and Environmental Responsibility targets.

Becoming involved can also contribute to the wealth of your company, as partnering with Healthy Rivers Australia can help you to:

- Differentiate your product or service—your product or service does more than those of your competitors and helps the environment.
- Increase sales to consumers—consumers are highly aware of environmental issues such as global warming and the drought and will purchase a product or service that contributes to creating a better environment in the long term.
- Become a supplier of choice—most companies now require their product or service providers to be accredited to quality and environmental standards.
- Attract investors—many investors are looking for 'green' investment opportunities.
- Attract and retain staff—research shows that people are happier working for a company that has good ethical and environmental practices.

Our projects

Healthy Rivers Australia supports a range of projects that focus on the restoration of river and wetland habitats, which in turn support native species such as fish, birds, frogs or vegetation. Though many ecosystems have been affected by the drought, habitats can be improved through the delivery of environmental water, or by on-ground infrastructure improvements. We focus on community-based projects and we are always on the look-out for exciting new project opportunities. To ensure the best outcomes, all projects that we support are accredited by qualified environmental managers.

Our Water Bank

Healthy Rivers Australia has South Australia's first environmental water-holding licence. The water on this licence can remain in the River Murray and contribute to environmental flows, or be delivered to project sites along the river to restore critical habitats for our native species.

We are building the Water Bank by purchasing water using funds raised through donations and sponsorship. Irrigators can also donate water directly to the Water Bank. Your involvement can actively help improve environmental outcomes for our rivers.
